Power Up!

Bountiful City has entered into a 25-year power purchase agreement for solar power through UAMPS with the Navajo Tribal Utility Authority Generation-Utah, LLC, a subsidiary of Navajo Tribal Utility Authority ("NTUA") in southeastern Utah. The facility will begin commercial operation mid-March 2023. This will be equivalent to installing 580 roof top solar systems and will supply approximately 5% of the City's total power needs.

NTUA will use some proceeds from the project to support electrification on the Navajo Nation, such as its Light Up Navajo! Initiative.

What's an ADU?

ADU stands for Accessory Dwelling Unit and is essentially a second small dwelling on the same property as a single-family home. By definition, it's a self-contained dwelling unit within an owner-occupied single-family residence or in a detached accessory structure located on an owner-occupied property.

Examples include an apartment over a garage, a tiny home on a foundation in the backyard, or a basement apartment. These units are not bought or sold separately. These units may serve multiple purposes, such as additional income, future home for owner wanting to downsize and rent the need of housing.

Bountiful City allows ADUs, both internal and external (detached) units subject to meeting code requirements. Detached ADUs are also considered a conditional use and require Bountiful City Administrative Committee approval. Internal ADUs are reviewed and approved by City Staff.
